McVey Is Speaker For Farm Meeting

U. of K. President Addresses 16th Annual Farm, Home Convention

Dr. Frank L. McVey was the principal speaker and Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture was master of ceremonies at the 16th annual farm and home banquet held at the Lafayette hotel on Feb. 30 for 400 farmers and farm women from all sections of Kentucky.

Dr. McVey spoke on "What Is It All About?" and told the gathering that farm people should seek to improve their standards of living by giving their best efforts in mind, body and spirit. He declared that better living conditions with greater opportunities for the future generation are far more important to the farmers of the state and nation than greater accumulations of wealth.

FOLK FESTIVAL PLANS ARE MADE

Faculty Committee Expects 150 Delegates from Nine Southern States to Take Part, April 2 to 4

The faculty and staff committee, appointed by Pres. Frank L. McVey, discussed plans for the University's first folk festival at a luncheon meeting at Boyd hall yesterday. The festival is to be held here April 2 to 4 under the joint sponsorship of the University and the Conference of Southern Mountain Workers.

Approximately 150 delegates from nine or more Southern states are expected to attend the festival, the latter's purpose being the promotion and exchange of folk songs, literature, and customs with particular emphasis of furthering the folk movement through the rural areas. Elmer G. Sulzer, director of publicity for the University, announced that he plans to have the final competitive program broadcast over a national hook-up, possibly CBS.

Members of the committee for the festival, appointed by Doctor McVey, are: Mrs. McVey, Prof. C. A. Lampert, Miss Sarah Blandford, Miss Mildred Lewis, Miss Lullie Logan, Frank Fowler, Mrs. Myrtle Weldon, Mr. Sulzer, Miss Zelma Monroe, Miss Florence Stout, Mrs. Marylee Collins, Miss Anne Callahan, M. B. Oyer, Mrs. L. C. Robinson, Mrs. Eda Giles, J. W. Whitehouse, Miss Stacie E. Erickson, Mrs. E. G. Trimble, Mrs. P. K. Holmes, Dr. T. T. Jones, Miss Helen King, and Miss Katherine Rogers.

Attention Called To Library Prize

President McVey is calling attention to the prizes offered by Hon. Samuel M. Wilson of Lexington for the best library owned and collected by undergraduate students. The prizes are $30 and $20. Those who expect to enter the contest for the prizes should register with the chairman of the committee on Student Library prizes, Miss Margaret I. King, on or before March 15. The committee, which consists of Miss King, Dr. George K. Brady and Dr. Thomas D. Clark, will visit and inspect the libraries offered by students for the prizes. The decision will be made in May.

The regulations set up by the committee provide that any undergraduate student who has been at the University for two years may compete. Students from junior colleges are eligible. The library must consist of at least fifty volumes. The books must be of interest and value and may not include school books. The contestant is expected to give reasons for having the books in his library, and be able to indicate to the committee his ownership of the library.

President McVey and the committee hope that there will be lively competition for the prizes.

"March Hares" To Begin At Guignol On February 17

Play Was "The Temperamentalists" When Given in New York City

"March Hares," a fantastic satire by Harry Wagstaff Gribble, will be presented at the Guignol Theatre the week of Feb. 18. The play was originally produced at the Bijou Theatre, New York City, under the title, "The Temperamentalists."

John Pyle, a University freshman, will play Geoffrey Wareham, and will share the lead with Minna Bloomfield, one of the favorites of the Guignol stage, who will play Janet Rodney. The part of her mother, Mrs. Janet Rodney, will be taken by Dorothy Dyer Rhodes.

An excellent supporting cast will include Katherine Conley Wheeler as Claudia Kite, Bryon Humphrey as Mr. Brown, Helen Rich as Ethel, Walter Kirkpatrick as Edgar Fuller, Wallace Briggs as Oliver and Mary Elizabeth Dunn as the cook.

Farm-Home Meeting Has Big Attendance

Despite bad weather and ice-covered roads, over 800 people attended the 24th annual Farm and Home Convention daily. More than 500 women attended the women's session in the judging pavilion on the second floor, while some 300 men met in the arena.

There was a special meeting for bee keepers and for veterinarians the first day. The general session drew over 1,000 people when Dr. J. B. Hutson, chief of the Tobacco section of the AAA, spoke.

After a round table discussion and an address by Dean Thomas P. Cooper in the afternoon, the meeting was brought to a close Friday.

And Never The Twain Shall Meet

The contrast in opinions and outlook on life as of the professor and student respectively has ever been a matter of concern in the American educational system. Some simply attribute to the major difference which has ever existed between youth and age. Others who are more broadminded and more understanding of the necessary changes which have been more or less set changes and divergences in courses for the past fifty years realize and believe that something can be done about the situation.

An example of the misunderstanding which exists between the faculty and student body has recently arisen on our own campus in the form of a dispute as to the advantages and disadvantages of the Wednesday night dances. These popular affairs "must go by the boards" because the astute members of the faculty feel that they interfere with the student's normal pursuit of study.

This view is not concurred in by the majority of the faculty but is the representation of an organized minority.

The paradox of the matter exists

"SERVE STATE WELL," DECLARES GOVERNOR

Witherspoon College President Also Addresses
Seniors

Sixty-five seniors and thirteen graduate students received their degrees Monday afternoon from Pres. Frank L. McVey at the Commencement exercises held at 3 o'clock in Memorial hall.

Gov. A. B. Chandler was the principal speaker at the exercises and addressed the graduates on "Youth at the Crossroads."

"Drive greed and selfish interests from the control of the government and you will be serving your state and your nation well," declared Governor Chandler, "and always remember that a man's history is written only after he has finished his job."

"Today," he added, "you face the master of human destiny—opportunity—and your future will require high hope, high courage, and high patriotism. There is no substitute for hard work, and if you expect to obtain happiness through the possession of material things your disappointment will be great."

"You have weathered the depression and overcome setbacks in obtaining your education and the University will find contentment and your parents joy in your ultimate success. Always bear in mind, however, that it isn't the man who succeeds in the dashes but the one who goes the full route who finds success at the end of the race."

Governor Chandler closed his address by asking for God's blessing on the members of the graduating class as the prayer of the president, the faculty, the families of each graduate, and the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Six advanced students of the R. O. T. C. were commissioned second lieutenants in the Reserve following the conferring of degrees and the administering of the oath.

Director of Bureau of Better Business Research Heads State Tax Group

James W. Martin, professor of economics and director of the Bureau of Business Research in the College of Commerce, has been appointed acting chairman of the State Tax commission by Gov. A. B. Chandler. Judge William H. Rees of the Court of Appeals administered the oath of office, and the commission is now composed of Professor Martin and Ben Marshall of Frankfort.

Prof. Martin has been a member of the College of Commerce since 1928, and is an authority on taxation problems. He was research director of the interstate commission on conflicting taxation in 1934 and 1935, issuing the report "Conflicting Taxation" for the American Legislators' association. He has also served in a consulting capacity with the several tax associations.

The new acting chairman is president of the Southern Economic association, and is editor of the status division of "Tax Systems of the World," which is the annual publication issued by the Commerce Clearing house.

In the fact that those very faculty members who are so prone to criticize the mid-week affairs are very ones who know little if anything about the situation which exists. They seem to have the conception that each week day evening finds the entire student body at home studying from immediately after dinner to about 10:30 when they tuck themselves safely in bed. They seem to forget that the modern university is something more than a place where books are kept and read and knowledge is absolute. They do not realize that the modern world demands more of the graduate than a "book larnin'."

Leading modern educators have come more and more to realize the value of extra-curricular activities in the last few years. The value of knowing how to meet people and make one's self heard—the development of personality—has come more and more to be regarded as one of the primary functions of a college education. To this end liberal steps have been taken with the purpose of making the members of

CAT-'BAMA

GAME, ALUMNI GYM, 8:00
P. M., TONIGHT

Game Will Start at Eight O'clock Sharp in Alum- ni Gym

An age-old adage, history repeats itself, will be tested tonight at 8 o'clock in Alumni gymnasium when the Kentucky Wildcats and the Alabama Crimson Tide line up for the second game between these two institutions tonight. Kentucky won the first game Monday night at Tuscaloosa by 32 to 30.

The Alabamians have one of the best teams in their history and have an excellent chance of defeating the Wildcats, something they have failed to do since Adolph Rupp has had charge of Kentucky basketball. Coach Hank Crisp has some long, rangy material that will give the small but speedy Wildcats plenty of trouble. At center the Tide has a lad who answers to the name of Sneed and who is six feet, seven inches tall. At forwards, there are Whatley and Keller, who measure six feet, six inches and six feet, five inches, respectively. The guard positions are held down by Bouska and Negi, boys who are somewhat smaller, but are still taller than some of the Wildcats.

Coach Rupp's starting five will be the same group that has started every other game this season. Carlisle and Hagan will be at forwards, Lewis at center, and Anderson and Donohue at guards. J. Rice Walker, Lexington sophomore, who has created a sensation in every game in which he has participated, will be kept on the bench until the Kentucky team begins to fall.

Tonight's game will be designated as Governor's Night. The Honorable Albert B. Chandler, Governor of Kentucky, will be guest of honor. He will have as escort the Pershing Rifle unit of the University and the Kentucky Band. The Governor will be the guest of President and Mrs. McVey at Maxwell Place after the game for a buffet supper. Between halves of the game the Alabama and Kentucky teams will be presented to the Governor.

Besides "Governor's Night," tonight will also be known as "Dr. Naismith Night," in honor of Dr. James Naismith, physical education teacher at Kansas, and the inventor of the game of basketball. The National Coaches' Association have each high school, college and professional team in the nation to set aside one game in honor of the father of the cage game. Kentucky officials decided on tonight's melee. Each person will be asked to contribute one cent to a fund to send Dr. Naismith and his wife to the Olympic basketball games in August. This fund will be collected from each school and presented to Naismith this spring. Coach Rupp is in charge of the Kentucky fund and has set $500 as the goal for this state.

U.K. Baccalaureate Services Are Held for class pledge by President McVey. They are Douglas Andrews, Lynn McCain, Waller Hunt, Jr., Harold Hill, Columbus Floyd, and Sylvester Anna.

Rev. Walker L. Shearer, pastor of Grace Baptist church, Lexington, gave the invocation and benediction. Organ and violin music were presented by Lee Crook and Mrs. Lela W. Cullis. Assembly singing of the Alma Mater was led by Prof. C. A. Lampert, head of the University music department.

Speaking on the "Romance of the Christian Faith" in his baccalaureate address to the mid-year graduating class at 3:30 o'clock last Sunday afternoon, February 3, in Memorial hall, Dr. Elmer E. Gabbard, president of Witherspoon college, Buckhorn, Ky., declared that "one might as well undertake to untwist the moonbeams that fall on the mellow fields of Kentucky as to attempt to untwist the name and love of Jesus from the heartstrings of the world."

"The romance of the Christian faith lies in the personality of its founder, the glory of its fellowship, and the power of its gospel," said Dr. Gabbard who proceeded to the history of Jesus Christ's life and death, and his heritage to mankind. Doctor Gabbard then traced the history of the Christian faith following its growth through the dark Ages and the Reformation.

In closing, Doctor Gabbard admonished the graduates to keep "eyes clear, minds clean, judgment steady and courage high in facing the problems of the world, closing with the prayer that "by the grace of God you will work through."

President McVey presided at the baccalaureate exercises and Rabbi Louis Grafman, Adath Israel Temple, gave the invocation, benediction and a scripture reading from the Book of Psalms. The University Chorists, under the direction of Miss Mildred Lewis, and an organ prelude presented by Miss Lela Cullis provided the music for the exercises.

The commencement exercises were broadcast by station WLAP from 3 to 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The baccalaureate exercises were broadcast Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from Memorial hall.

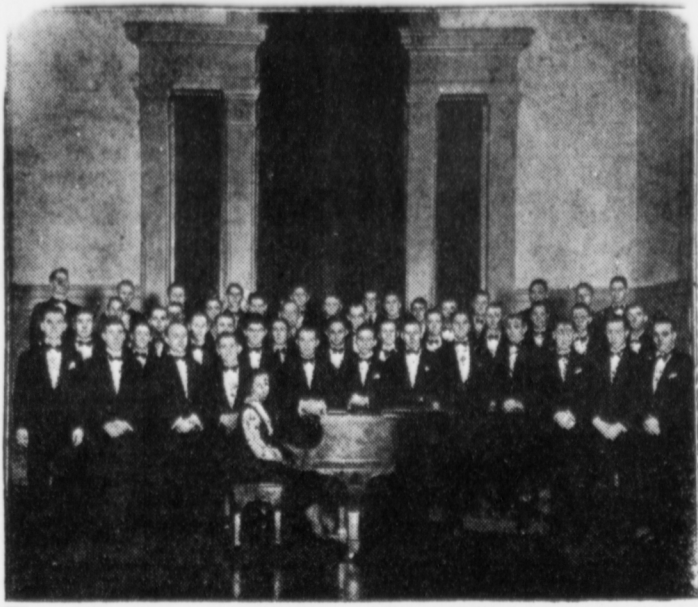

Immediately following the baccalaureate sermon, a tea in the club rooms was given by the University of Kentucky Club in honor of the mid-year graduating class.

Moreover our purpose is not to discount the value of concentrated study and application to the knowledge which may be gained from the courses offered in the various departments of the university. At the same time recognition must be made of the fact that the student is not going to spend all his time studying and if the University does not offer facilities for his recreation he will find it elsewhere in places which perhaps are not as desirable for the uplift of moral character.

The Glee club will be assisted by a number of soloists including Jesse Mountjoy, tenor; Mary Louise McKenna, soprano; Harlowe Dean, baritone; Mary Rudicel, harpist, and Ruth Clopton, reader.

The Glee club has made a number of appearances throughout the state this season and has sung before various organizations in the city of Lexington. The program which is to be presented is varied in character and should be of special interest to the student body of the University.

Basketball games, intramural contests, fall festivals, benefit performances, Guignol plays or what have you may be held on any night during the week. Why, then, must there be discrimination against the Wednesday night dances which have provided an outlet to the demand for student recreation which naturally comes in the middle of the week.

The passing of the Wednesday night dances is depressing in that it ends an effort of the University to provide for its student body in other than an academic manner. The end is occasioned by the fact that there still exists that age-old difference in thought and opinion between the faculty and the student body. It is to be hoped that the future may bring about a better understanding.

Leo Green, A. L. Gillespie to Lead Talks, Singing at Meeting

A. L. Gillespie, who was graduated from the University of Tennessee and is now studying at the Baptist Seminary in Louisville, will lead the singing at the student revival which will be held on the campus next week. Mr. Gillespie has been a song leader at many such student revivals throughout the South.

The revival, which is being sponsored by the University of Kentucky Baptist Student Union, will be conducted by Leo Green, also of the Baptist Seminary. Mr. Green was speaker at the Thanksgiving sunrise service which was attended by a large number of students.

The meetings will be held at 7:30 p. m. at Memorial hall, beginning Monday, February 10, and they will continue through the week through the night of Friday, February 14. There will also be personal conferences conducted by Mr. Gillespie at 4 p. m. every afternoon at Memorial hall. All students are invited to attend these meetings.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

*RESULTS VERIFIED BY INDEPENDENT CHEMICAL LABORATORIES AND RESEARCH GROUPS

All kinds of people choose Luckies, each for reasons of his own. But everyone agrees that Luckies are A Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco. It is a rather surprising fact that the leaves of the same tobacco plant may vary far more than the leaves from plants of quite different types. Chemical analysis shows that the top leaves contain excess alkalies which tend to give a harsh, alkaline taste. The bottom leaves tend to acidity in the smoke. It is only the center leaves which approach in Nature the most palatable, acid-alkaline balance. In Lucky Strike Cigarettes, the center leaves are used.

You Won't Make the Front Page If You Die of "T.B."

By VERA GILLESPIE

If you want your death notice on the front page, get shot by Public Enemy XYZ, bite twenty black widow spiders before one bites you, pine away for love, prove to your friends that you will strike lightning instead of it striking you or win the world's record for getting blown into the smallest pieces by dynamite. But don't die of tuberculosis. It won't make big news even here where 24.14 per cent of tested students reacted positively last year.

The statement that more people died from tuberculosis in Kentucky than from automobile accidents last year is not first page news, neither is the fact that tuberculosis kills more Kentuckians annually than the World War did. People would rather read about the war. It is more highly advertised and decidedly more spectacular. And yet one corpse is no deader than the other.

There are many figures to consider. One set of figures says that two million Americans of the present generation will die of tuberculosis before they reach maturity if nothing is done regarding this disease. Another report contains the information that over 90 per cent of the people in a temperate climate have tuberculosis at some time in their life. This may be in so mild a form that the person does not realize that he has it. There are nearly as many cases among school children now as there were fifty years ago. The largest number of deaths occurs in the age group of 20 to 24.

Something can be done about tuberculosis for it is both curable and preventable. Of the 50 to 100 per cent who have tuberculosis infection, there are not more than 3 to 5 per cent in whom it is actively developed. The mortality is rapidly decreasing. In fact, from 1930 to 1933, there was a decrease of slightly more than 5 per cent per year.

In so far as the states of the United States are concerned, high standards of education and minimizing the risk of infection from negroes, combined with life in a sunny, dry and high altitude climate, would seem to be far more important than other elements, such as large per capita income or low population density, in reducing to a minimum the white death rate from pulmonary tuberculosis.

The fact has been well established that chronic pulmonary tuberculosis usually exists one or more years before it causes the usual symptoms. It is also well known that when the symptoms appear, approximately 80 per cent of the patients have the disease in a moderate or far advanced stage, and are spreading tubercle bacilli to their associates.

If you have tuberculosis and you don't want to go to a physician, you might try one of these old-time remedies: wolf's liver boiled in wine, bacon of a sow fed on herbs, the tips of a cow's horn, burned with the admixture of honey in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls and swallowed in the form of pills, or the lung of a deer dried in smoke and beaten up in wine.

Last year the Department of Hygiene, under the direction of Dr. J. S. Chambers, introduced the tuberculin test on this campus. A total of 1,696 students were given the test, of which 414, or 24.14 per cent, reacted positively. Those reacting positively were X-rayed, and seven students were found to have serious cases.

Is this news? Well, the child with the upside-down stomach makes splendid copy. So too does the crippled boy painfully limping on his crutches across the highways of three states to reach the miracle man. Tuberculosis does not make the front page, but it does make splendid invalids.

Low Living Cost At U.K. Brought To Light by Dean

One dollar and forty-eight cents per school day is all that is necessary to take four year courses, not including those with extra fees, at the University of Kentucky.

Few state universities in the country offer educational facilities comparable to those at the University at such a moderate cost.

Dr. T. T. Jones, Dean of Men, states that while the fees are, in general, on par with those of other state institutions, the cost of living at the University is somewhat lower than at most universities.

The truth of Dean Jones' statement is borne out by the fact that almost 300 out-of-state students registered in the fall of 1934, many of them for the specific reason of taking advantage of the moderate living costs which prevail at the University.

Of the daily sum of $1.48 which is based on the annual expenditure of $400 a year and 270 days in the year, eighty-seven cents goes for living expenses, thirty-six cents for fees, and twenty-five cents for books, laundry, and miscellaneous expenses.

That it is possible to reduce this figure still further is shown by the fact that many students of the total enrollment of about 2,800 students earn part or all of their expenses. Stenographers, paper-carriers, waiters, assistants in homes, clerks, and other workers are included in this list of students.

According to Dean Jones a conservative estimate of the expenses of the average student would lie between $375 and $425 a year.

Fees vary according to the course taken but for the average student they amount to $47 a semester which entitles the student at no further cost to the following: medical attention at the University dispensary or if necessary at the student's room by a staff consisting of the director, Dr. J. S. Chambers, three assisting physicians, including an ear, nose, and throat specialist, two registered nurses, and a technician; subscription to The Kentucky Kernel, the official college paper; admission to all home athletic events; admission to a series of twelve musicales presented each year at Memorial hall, and a reduction in admission to dramatic productions at the Guignol theater. Parts of the fee go also toward the support of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. and the campus, the Men's Student Council, the Women's Self-Governing Association, post office, class dues, and the remainder to the general University fund.

Living expenses consist of room rent, which, in the University residence halls for men, is from $37.50 to $50 a semester and meals which can be had at the University cafeteria for as low as $81 a semester. At the residence halls for women room and meals together amount to $260 a year.

Miscellaneous expenses include books, laundry, railway fare, and other items which vary according to the individual student.

Considering the services rendered by the University to its students in preparing them for various occupations it is believed that the daily sum of $1.48 is moderate.

Colleges Offer Alumni Courses

"I wish I could go to college again," has been heard so often at various universities that several of them are offering courses especially designed for graduates and alumni.

Experiments along this line were first started at Michigan in 1930. Alfred Shaw, director of alumni relations at the University of Michigan, reported that a series of classes set up during commencement week of that year went over with enthusiasm. Old graduates said they learned better than when they were undergraduates. Professors found the alumni classes more lively than regular classes. So the Alumni Institute has come to stay at the University of Michigan.

The University of North Carolina established the same sort of thing in 1933. During the last quarter of that year special courses were provided for graduates at reasonable prices.

Economic conditions of the last few years have brought many unemployed graduates back to the classroom. Walter C. John, education specialist, estimates that 80,000 graduate students studying in American colleges today. In 1900 there were 5,831.

While most universities are content to let the alumni go their various ways, a few pioneers are keeping a hold on their graduates by offering such work.

Schools more advanced than graduate schools are coming in, too. Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, New Jersey, and the Brookings Institute, Washington, D. C. are examples.

The most popular degree sought in most graduate work is the master's degree. The first master's degree bestowed in the United States was at Harvard College in 1642.

Mining Lab Gets Testing Machine

Did you ever notice that knock in the engine of your car? Well, the mining lab has acquired a machine that tests gasolines for their knocking quality, that finds out just which grade of gas has the lowest knock rating. This machine, presented to the University by the Ashland Refining company, is called the "Octane" machine; it is a regular gasoline cylinder engine standing about six feet on its concrete base and weighs approximately 1500 pounds, equipped with a synchronous generator. However, the installation of this new equipment is not yet complete.

The test is made by comparing a given known artificially compounded motor fuel with known knocking qualities to the fuel with unknown knocking percentage and thus finding its rating.

The Mining laboratory is already equipped to make tests of various lubricants and this machine adds greatly to their experimental work and service capacities. The University is very grateful to the Ashland Refining company for this generous piece of equipment, which will be used by the mining and engineering students in various experimental work.

While Safety slogans will help in making our streets and roads safer, we're going to have to go much farther than that.

We Didn't Have To Print This At All, But We Did!

In taking a look at the Kernel files in the library it is very easy to find the rhythm of college life. The first Kernel of the fall semester comes out usually in the middle of September. Flaring across the top of the page is a headline, "Ump-teen Hundred Students Register, Largest Enrollment Ever!" Somewhere on the same page is the story about the summer archaeological work of Doctors Webb and Funkhouser with the collection of skulls, bones and broken pottery described.

Another story describes the Kernel plant, which does all the University printing. The sport department describes last year's team and p.e.dics a conference championship. The frosh team is given to "oo" and the froshettes the "oh oh." An editorial comments the rushing rules and another begs us not to rush the movies.

The next Kernel describes the opener with Maryville, score about 60-0. The Rose Bowl is on its way. From now on till the Thanksgiving game with Tennessee, the paper is very much interested in the team. Sukey gets its share of glory at the pep meetings. The band comes in for mention whenever we lose a game, since it is sure to have outshone its rival horn tooters.

About the first of November, in odd numbered years, the homecoming number comes out. It plays up the old grads and the feature writers get their first big chance to show what they can do. The Alumni dance is held at the gym.

In the middle of November, the P. M. S. & T. announces the cadet officers for the regiment. The Corps puts on its first parade on Armistice Day.

The next event is the Cat-Vol game. The hysteria rises to a climax. Everybody goes to Voland if they have to hide in the band baggage to do so. If the game is here, the whole town dresses up with the team's colors. The massed bands play and march. If it's our win we take the town apart and the next Kernel begs us to behave like grown ups. It also starts taking basketball.

There is a Santa Claus break in which we intend to make up back work, but never seem to get around to finding time for. As soon as we get back they start worrying us about finals—ain't it a shame?

The second semester hasn't much to recommend it—oh yeah? Those long spring nights—that swell coed—the time you pinned her—the Junior Prom and the Senior Ball—May election and May Day—O. T. C. parades—field day—And in a black-clad line to commence finally the cadets leading you down town to get the parchments—so long to U. K. for another year, for most of us.

PROFS AND STUDENTS DIVULGE VARIED VIEWS ON EXAMINATIONS

By FRANK BURGER

A famous writer of college stories once said, "Examinations are intellectual vampires. They draw forth the blood of knowledge accumulated and enriched over a period of time."

As the dreaded vampire begins to spread its web-like wings ominously over our own campus, the subject of examinations creeps more and more into the minds and conversations of teachers and students alike.

"Examination" comes from the Latin meaning "tongue of a balance," but the word has an altogether different portent in this modern day. What do you think of examinations? Ask yourself this question and then compare your answer with the variegated group below. For days the writer has been prying into the thoughts of friend and foe to discover in just what light finals are held. As the research man would say, "I'm ready to publish," so here goes...

President McVey, with his customary understanding of the whims of aspirant journalists, was quite willing to say that "An examination is a test of instruction for student and instructor. As a test it should find the weak points of learning and teaching and the results used to help the student and better the instructor. Trick questions should not enter into examinations, but the examination procedure should be used as an educational help."

George Spencer and "Fritz" Borries said, both without cracking a smile: "'A' students never fear examinations. We can only feel sorry for the others."

Here is the opinion of Dr. Funkhouser, dean of the graduate school: "I believe that most examinations do not accomplish the purpose for which they are intended and would be glad to find some substitute for them. I think, however, that a thorough review is very important and in my own classes always use a type of examination which requires such a review."

Quite illuminating is this comment from Capel McNash, author, journalist, aviator, inventor, and musician. He said, "To me the most important thing about finals is their finality."

Officer Kelly, the Kampus Kop, divulges this. "The botanical garden has been rather empty the last few nights. Of course, it might be the weather."

A word from Mr. Gabbard of the Chemistry department: "A final examination enables the student to obtain a perspective view of the course, and this, in my opinion, is its chief purpose and benefit."

Here's something we suspected all along. Little Davis, nurse at the Dispensary, stated that there seems to be a slight tendency for the number of patients visiting the dispensary to increase as exam time approaches.

Niel Plummer, professor of journalism, gave the one-word answer: "Work."

Perhaps Oscar Wisner, drummer boy in the UK band, expressed the thoughts of the average student when he said, "I think exams are a pain in the neck."

Or Basil Baker, 1936 Kyian editor, who came forth with, "To me exams mean just three things: a lot of hard work, a lot of 'cramming,' and a lot of foolishness."

A comforting thought from the book store...Mr. Morris says he

KYIAN PRE-VUES PURCHASER

The Publicity Department has purchased from the Kentuckian 3,000 copies of the first sixteen pages of the new University of Kentucky yearbook, a pre-vue to this year's edition, containing pictures of prominent people and scenes around the campus. They will be mailed out to prospective University students and all students who have friends who are contemplating attending the University may obtain copies of the pre-vue by calling at the Publicity office.

For the first time in over 20 years Dr. J. B. Miner, head of the psychology department, was absent from classes last week because of illness. Dr. Miner was confined to his home with a heavy cold.

BELIEVE IN YOURSELF

Give me the man who believes in persistent effort. He has an objective in all that he does, and he keeps the light of it constantly before him.

No trumpets announce his successive steps from one vantage point to another. He cares not for praise nor does he need continuous urging. His urge comes from within, and directs his course from day to day. The seeming flare of spasmodic achievement disturbs him not. But when the months have rolled by, he has gained ground steadily, and as the years succeed each other, he becomes what the world is pleased to call an "outstanding success."

Some gain success quickly, apparently without effort, and we are prone to call them "lucky." Too often the results of such success are lost just as quickly and just as easily. Persistent effort goes on to the end. It does not rest on laurels gained, for the persistent worker finds joy only in continued achievement, no matter how much may already have been gained.—Daily Tribune, Royal Oak, Mich.

NEWSPAPER MISTAKES

Lehigh Independent-Argus: Errors in newspapers are frequent, though it is the goal of one and all who claim to be journalists to eradicate the disease of mistakes. An editorial in the Leigh, Nebraska World, published some time ago, expressed the situation and gives some advice which could be read over with profit every once in a while, both by newspaper folk and subscribers.

"Yes, newspapers make mistakes. There is no concealing the fact, because the errors themselves are spread where all the world may see them. But is there as much inaccuracy as people think? Probably not. Frank R. Kent of the Baltimore Sun, speaking at William and Mary College, makes a striking statement of the case, which may interest readers as much as it interests newspapermen. In no business and in no profession save that of the pure scientist, he declares, 'is the premium of accuracy so high, the penalty for inaccuracy so prompt and the proportion of accuracy so great. There isn't a newspaperman anywhere who does not know that trivial though his error may be, someone will catch it. Even when it escapes the watchful editorial gaze, even when no one in the office picks it up, even when he himself is unaware of it, there are still the old subscribers—thousands of them—vigilant, alert, aggressive, resentful, eager to put their finger on the "break," communicate with the editor and "show up" the writer and the paper. These old subscribers, in my judgment, are by far the most valuable asset a newspaperman can have. Their militant, microscopic scrutiny is the finest possible corrective influence.'—Journal, Webster City, Ia.

THE SECOND HALF

It is with a feeling of futility that a basketball team returns to the floor for the second half after taking a terrific beating from their opponents the first half. They may have just as good a team as the other squad, but were "off" during the initial period and find themselves trailing far behind when the whistle blows for the second half. Fortunately, however, this is not true in the case of the college student who has been an utter failure the first semester. When he matriculates the second semester, his record for the previous period is a thing of the past, and he has a clean slate upon which he can write an account of the outstanding work accomplished during that term.

There are many things which may cause a good student to fall below the level to which he is accustomed. It might have been sickness, in ability to adjust himself to play which caused the disastrous new surroundings, or too much consequences, but whatever the cause might have been, he has the opportunity to atone for his defeat.

New resolutions involving more studying and less playing are to be heard on all corners. The main question, however, is whether these resolutions will be kept throughout the semester or will be forgotten in a few weeks. There are two paths open to college students: one leads to a college education and a bright future; the other leads to a degree and long months of weary searching for a mere job, not a position suitable for a college graduate.

The University offers you the opportunity, but it cannot compel you to take advantage of it. The professors can offer you the knowledge which they have accumulated by long years of hard work, but they cannot make you accept it. The matter rests entirely in your hands—you can either take it or leave it!

A Story of a Brick

What unknown story can you tell?
What soft-shod foot has tread thy upturned face?
Thy irregular pattern, woven in some fantastic design,
Weaving tales so fantastic, so sublime.

What childish prattle have you heard
Spoken to thy upturned face?
You lie still there, untouched, unharmed,
Protected by God's good earth in all love and charm.

How many years have you been Buried in the soil, so rich, so good?
Only you can tell to us forgotten tales unforgotten,
To you understood.

If only you could speak and let be known
The mysteries that you know.
But no, no voice from you shall come,
You will covet your tales of woe and good.

Never to be forgotten, you shall lie,
A remainder of a day now gone by.
Composed at the time the writer found such a brick walk, buried in about 15 feet of soil, in perfect shape.

Some folks, don't tell what they know, while other folks tell what they don't know.

The year 1936 may be a break for the girls, but to the pedestrian it is just another leap year.

STUDENT OPINION

"Athletics," says the average alumnus, "advertises the college."

Alumni say this because their experience in the business world shows that advertising pays. And while it is admitted that a certain amount of advertising is acquired in this way, yet just what kind is it and does it pay in the case of the college?

The alumni who make such statements are interested in the school's welfare. They think that by following the advertising-through-athletics policies they are actually furthering the Alma Mater's cause.

As a matter of fact this policy does help to advertise and it actually adds new students. But the type who goes to college simply because it attracts or brings good athletics is hardly the type that a college should try to add to its student body.

It all goes back to the old policy of educating a few but educating them well. The wholesale skeppin production of today is admitted by all who know anything about it to be a imperfect system. Too many students drift through school on the curve system or law of averages and end up educated in name only.

"The 'I have a college diploma' recommendation is fast ceasing to be a recommendation. In some cases it is becoming a drawback.

This situation can be blamed at least in part to the athletic carryings-on of the alumni. Apparently going to college has become popular with the rise of sports advertising. A few years ago colleges drew their students from the upper 10 per cent of the population. Now students come from the upper 50 per cent. College standards of thorough education have decreased proportionately to allow the majority to get through. Schools are now mills turning out as many units as possible of that intangible commodity, education.

This treatment of the alumni may seem too harsh. They are undoubtedly necessary to any institution. But at the same time it cannot be denied that they are vigorous in pushing athletics to the exclusion of other campus activities.

The majority of them believe heart and soul in athletics. They pay scouts to hunt up material. They often let scouts know they will offer money to good athletes. If teams are built up the alumni feel they have done their duty. But do they offer to hunt up good students?

"Why hunt up good students," they ask, "when a football team advertises the school more than 1,000 Phi Betas would?"

They believe a few disastrous athletic seasons would ruin a school permanently. At least two eastern colleges, Harvard and Dartmouth, prove that athletics are not everything. University of Kentucky has had a very good growth in student enrollment over a long period although it has never been outstanding athletically.

Learning is fundamental; athletics, incidental.

Cinder Flash Is Attending U. K.

Although few may be aware of it, the University has among its sophomores this year one of the greatest middle-distance men in the south and perhaps the greatest track man ever to grace these halls of learning. Dave Rogan is the name. He came here a year ago from the little town of Middlesboro, in the mountains of southeastern Kentucky, bringing with him an ambition to be a great runner—an ambition that is on its way to being realized.

A number of people may still remember how last fall Dave easily won the intra-mural cross-country run. And those enthusiasts who braved the rainy weather to see the intra-mural track meet last spring surely have not forgotten the amazing performance that he gave, running the half-mile to win in two minutes and four seconds, winning the quarter-mile and helping measurably to win two or three relays—all in one afternoon. And have we forgotten how, without training for the meet, he ran as a filler-in on five minutes' notice in the two-mile run of varsity and freshmen against Vanderbilt last spring and lead the nearest varsity man in the half by a lap?

Shortly after that meet Dave took a couple weeks of training, and running by himself in an exhibition run at the Kentucky Inter-Scholastic track meet, he broke the Stoll Field track record for the one-mile run, lowering it a couple of seconds to the creditably fast time of four minutes and twenty-nine seconds. Probably the best time ever made by a University of Kentucky miler, it places Dave Rogan easily among the best milers in the South.

Reputations wear out quickly when not taken care of.

Geology Museum Has New Exhibits

Visitors to the University of Kentucky Museum of Geology which occupies the second floor of the Administration building, have a new exhibit for their interest, according to David M. Young, curator of the museum.

From Charles R. Knight of the American Museum of Natural History, has been secured a set of 44 sepia paintings of landscapes of past geological ages. These pictures include authentic reproductions of extinct land, water and air animals, of which the only knowledge available is based upon their fossil remains. These pictures have been assembled in chronological fashion, so that a visitor passing the exhibit from left to right will see pictorially the almost lifeless landscape of the earth, and those leading to the panorama immediately preceding the coming of man.

These pictures have been hung in the fossil room, which also includes fossils of the ages represented by the pictures.

The University of Kentucky Geological Museum is open Mondays to Fridays inclusive from 9 to 12 o'clock and 2 to 4:30 o'clock, and Saturday morning from 9 to 12 o'clock, but is closed in the afternoon.

U. K. Law Prof Outwits Students

Dr. Frank H. Randall of the College of Law ingeniously outwitted two students in the Law building. It happened like this:

One student prankster wrote on the blackboard, "Dr. Randall will not meet his classes today." The second student prankster erased the 'c' from the word 'classes' making it, "Dr. Randall will not meet his lassess today." Dr. Randall entered the room, noticed the blackboard and quickly erased the 'l' from the word, 'lassess.'

B. C. Forbes, financial writer, points out that one Chicago business firm pays $10,000 in taxes every day, while another has to dig up 25,000 iron man as their daily tax subscription. Seemingly those business houses pay it, but the customer foots the bill in the long run, so no wonder we are all wondering where it will finally end.

The season is at hand when we shall see some of our most esteemed citizens and some not so highly esteemed, either "viewing with alarm" or "pointing with pride."

Hoi Polloi

By BOB HESS

Hoi Polloi? Huey Poinsett would be more like it. It's going to ruin me yet—made the worst standing since I've been in school. Makes a good story, anyway.

After exams I heard one of the campus folk say, "Well, now I won't have to open a book till next May." Oh, yeah? Wonder if it was the engineer who made straight "A's" in all his courses, except for a B in physical ed?

The registration and classification scramble—the last Wednesday night dance....and two days of classes....some studies are complaining of fatigue already. Game tonight, and if it is as close as the last one there will be some mighty tired vocal chords.

The Roses

Have you seen the pretty Ashland blonde who has come to our great university from Marshall College? Yeah, the one who looks as if she stepped right out of a cigarette ad. The name is Irene Sparks and she's the kind of spark that ignites the flame within. She is a second semester junior, a psych. major, and made straight "A's" at Duke, where she previously matriculated. At this institution she courted Duke's former football captain and famous guard, Jack Dunlap, the Oklahoma cow-puncher. She has moved into the KD house, and are the KD's glad. So to you, Irene, go the roses of the week—not only for looks, but personality as well.

Annoying Poetry

Little tiny rain drops,
Prowling as they fall.
Feeling's feet fly upward.
Biff! And that is all.

To the management of the Strand theatre: You will find the stolen signs in the room of Charlie Mad's and Bob Stevens at the Sigma Nu house. "The Last Outpost"—makes 'em feel like real h-m-en when they arise for an eight o'clock.

Flip-Flop Heart

"Senator" Flippin's heart flips from romance to romance....Mary LeBus to Sissy LeBus and now to pretty little Virginia Cawwood. Hope you can do a little better with the fervent feelings of this politician, Virginia.

Dirty Work

Did you hear about the little girl who was taking a quiz in Economic History and thought that she was a "lock." One of the fellows on her "string" grades the quiz papers for the instructor. She knew not what the score was concerning the answers to the questions, so she wrote, "Jimmy, dear, I didn't study. Give me a good grade, you darling." As it was, Jimmy didn't grade these papers and was the young lady nonplussed when she learned that her prof-wifey read her little note to Jimmy. Rumor has it that Jimmy's last name is Smees, and that the young lady is Liz Black.

The Real McCoy

Jack May be in love, and Jack May is in love. After a courtship of many moons he finally crashed through—or was it Sorry Craft who crashed through, and isn't really sorry. Anyway, Sorry is now the proud possessor of the SAE pin of proxy Jack May. And, as is the custom with the three D gals. Sorry had to eat her dessert under the table the other night. More power to you two.

It Was Really Serious

In the February 3 issue of the Herald, on the stocks and bonds page, was a wedding announcement. Guess who! Lucky Frank Rhodes has taken pretty Liz Crain for better or for worse. She couldn't be any better, so.... And the thing is that they have been married since January 5. Loads of luck to you two.

News Report

Apparently Mat McLaughlin didn't read "And Sudden Death," as indicated by a local news report on February 4. You know what we mean, Mat.

Easy Money

Step right up, folks, and get your Double Mint gum from Jack "Easy Money" Howard. Where these guys and these snap jobs is what we've been trying to find out for a long time. Sorry, Charlie Mades, that we can't print your little item about Jack....it might cause dissension in the nurses' home.

It takes 25 operations to finish one Ford valve

EACH Ford valve requires twenty-five separate operations from the time work starts on a rough valve until it is ready for use. That is a surprising number of operations for such a simple looking part, but typical of Ford care in manufacturing.

The stems of the rough valves first receive two preliminary grinding operations. Then they go through a furnace where the heads are brought to a red heat. Next, automatic fingers place them in a huge machine where a ram strikes the red-hot heads. This operation refines the grain structure in the head, straightens it, and forms the valve seat.

Valves then pass through other grinding, machining and polishing operations. Each stem is ground five times for greater accuracy and smoothness. Inspection gages keep a constant check.

In spite of this care, each Ford valve is subjected to rigid final inspection. Amplifying gages check the stem for roundness within two ten-thousandths of an inch. Similar gages check diameter. Other inspection equipment indicates the slightest "run out" of seat and checks stem end for squareness. Then the valves go into a constant temperature room where they are inspected for length.

The Ford V-8 runs like a fine car because it is built like a fine car. No car at any price is made to finer precision limits.

"SOUR MASH"

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By JOE QUINN
Kernel Sports Editor

Coming back off the road after some rather difficult sledding, Coach Rupp's Wildcats are prepared to face an embattled Alabama quintet here tonight for the second time within the week. The 'Cats triumphed at Tuscaloosa after staving off a desperate rally by the Tide in the closing minutes, escaping with a two-point win, 32-30.

Alabama, which usually picks up power as the season progresses, is now traveling at top speed and will be in the mood to avenge Monday night's setback when they trot out on the Alumni gym floor tonight.

Kentucky's representatives, upon their return from the south, brought tales of the prodigious size of their Tide opponents. According to the reports, Hank Crisp has a lot of altitude in his material. A six foot, seven-inch center is ably assisted by two forwards stretching six feet six and six feet five inches into the ozone. The other two regulars are only midgets of a mere six feet.

It may be expected, then, that Alabama will be somewhat troublesome here tonight. Ralph Carlisle, leading 'Cat scorer to date, was ejected, along with Garland Lewis, at Vanderbilt but was held to a single field goal during his stay in the contest. He tallied seven points at Birmingham but even this was not up to his regular performance. The atmosphere of the home court may be more to Carlisle's liking and give him an opportunity to get back into the scoring circus again tonight.

One of the pleasant developments of the southern trip was the snooting exhibition of Warfield Donohue and Andy Anderson. Anderson came through with two field goals and a foul try in the losing battle against Vandy while Donohue counted with three hoops and three foul tries for nine points of the total thirty-two against Alabama. It should give Coach Rupp a pleasant feeling in discovering that he has a couple of potential scorers in the backcourt.

Tonight's game will be Kentucky's night to honor Dr. Naismith, founder of the court game. Each person who attends the game will be less hardy lads to keep our coat collars turned up, but coach Chet Wynne is contemplating sending some of his candidates out for practice Monday afternoon. The only thing, probably, which will keep him from it, is a small blizzard or a minor flood.

At the moment he is not certain when regular "spring" drills will get underway, but he expects to have a few of the boys work out starting Monday. If he gets any kind of a break on the weather, the rest of the squad may expect to start work within the next week or two.

It appears that Kentucky will not be represented on the diamond again this year. Early in the year it was planned to revive the national pastime here, but lack of an adequate playing field has caused authorities to give up the idea until next year.

Workmen now completing the new track out on Stoll field have no made enough progress to allow a baseball field to be put in the proper condition for games this spring. The only other field available in town of any consequence, the Eppings ball park, was burned down and leaves the prospective team without a place to play home games.

It is definitely certain, however, that Kentucky will have a team next year, when a field will be laid out and a proper schedule may be arranged before the season starts.

Norris "Bo" McMillan, Wildcat varsity quarterback of last season has cast his lot with the professional wrestlers. "Double O" won his first match out at Woodland auditorium in less than two minutes with a flying tackle. Although scheduled to appear again last Wednesday night, "Bo" was forced to wrestle with an attack of the gripe instead. He will appear next Wednesday night at Woodland, however. Bernie Shively is to confer with officials at the University of Louisville today in regard to a new job. If an agreement can be reached, Shively may be made athletic director at Louisville. Football Captain Stanley "Stash" Nevers will probably regret the advent of spring practice. As it will no doubt interfere with his social obligations, and that would never do. Jimmy Westbrook and Dave Rogan were lost to Kentucky's boxing squad just before the opening

'CAT PUGILISTS
LOSE FIRST BOUTS

Participating in the first intercollegiate boxing match in the history of the school, the University of Kentucky pugilists lost a close and exciting meet to the Volunteers of Tennessee, 4½ to 3½, Tuesday night at Knoxville.

The Vols, with four meets already behind them, entered the match as favorites but had a much harder time with the 'Cats than they had expected.

meet with Tennessee. Westbrook was ruled out because of a technical error in filing his eligibility blank. While the pros threw Rogan for a loss last semester, LeRoy "Big Ed" Edwards, last season's Kentucky center and mainstay, will appear in Cincinnati Sunday night. As the featured performer of the U. S. Tire team of Indianapolis, which opposes the professional Cincinnati Redlegs, John Drury reached the finals of the Golden Gloves tourney in Louisville this week. He is also filing the heavyweight berth on the 'Cat pugilistic team. Although Vanderbilt beat Kentucky the local lads took Alabama. Yet Kentucky players feel certain that the 'live w'll easily overcome Vandy when the two clash. And the boys don't feel any kinder towards Vanderbilt after Coach Josh Cody was quoted in one of the Nashville papers as saying, "I don't see how Kentucky ever beat Pittsburgh. We've played several better teams than Kentucky this year."

In the 115-pound class, Madaras gained the decision over M. G. Karsner, Kentucky, but only by a narrow margin. The Tennessee boxer had a weight and reach advantage on Karsner and made the most of it.

Betty Cury, Kentucky, won a clean-cut decision over Tunnell in the 125-pound class for one of Kentucky's three victories. Alexander Vol captain, had little trouble with Evans after the first round in the 135-pound class.

In the welterweight class, Dick Butler put up against Senter of Tennessee but dropped a close decision.

Probably the best match of the night was the bout between Bob Forsythe, Kentucky, and E. R. Aft. After three rounds of furious m'ling, Forsythe was given the verdict, the first scored over the Tennessee man in two years of intercollegiate competition, stamping Forsythe as one of the formidable contenders for the conference 155-pound crown.

Jimmy Waddington, Kentucky, fought a three round draw with Walker of the Vols in the 165-pound event while Nick Lutz copped the nod over Little but injured his hand so badly in doing it that he will be out of competition for the remainder of the season. John Drury, Kentucky, lost the decision to Crawford in the heavyweight class.

Here's one cigarette that writes its own advertising..

It's like this—

You see I'm reading a Chesterfield advertisement and I'm smoking a Chesterfield cigarette, and all of you are smoking Chesterfields.

Now listen—Chesterfields are mild (not strong, not harsh). That's true isn't it?

Then you read "and yet they satisfy, please your taste, give you what you want in a cigarette." That says it, doesn't it?

Wait a minute—

It says now that Chesterfields have plenty of aroma and flavor. One of you go out of the room and come back. That will tell you how pleasing the aroma is.
